

Did you know?

Exposing young children to a wide variety of fonts is an excellent way to enable children to truly master letter names.

Materials

Food packaging.

Preparation

None needed. Jump on in!

WHAT TO DO

1. As you and your child walk through various aisles of a store, ask her to look for a particular letter on labels (boxes, signs, etc.). For example, “In this aisle, look for items that start with the letter /t/?”
2. You can adapt this by playing at home (invite your child to search for items in your pantry, refrigerator, etc.).
3. If your child needs support, show her the letter and ask her to find something with that starts with the same letter. For example, you may show them a can of tomatoes and point to the letter T (and then ask her to find a different item that either starts with or has a letter /t/).

